UNITED STATES v. JUVENILE MALEON PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

No. 09–940. Decided June 7, 2010

When respondent was 15, he admitted to engaging in sexual acts with a child under 12, was adjudged delinquent under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act (FJDA), and was sentenced to two years' detention followed by juvenile supervision until his 21st birthday. While he was in juvenile detention, Congress enacted the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA), which includes a registration requirement for persons adjudicated delinquent for sex offenses such as his. The Attorney General then issued an interim rule specifying that SORNA applies to sex offenders convicted even before SORNA's enactment. Subsequently, the District Court required respondent to register as a sex offender pursuant to SORNA as a condition of his supervised release. The Ninth Circuit vacated that part of the order, concluding that SORNA's retroactive application to individuals adjudicated delinquent under the FJDA before SORNA's enactment violates the Ex Post Facto Clause. Respondent's juvenile-supervision term ended in 2008.

Held: Because respondent's juvenile-supervision term has ended, and he thus is no longer subject to his supervision's sex-offender-registration conditions, his case will be moot unless he can show that a decision invalidating those conditions would be sufficiently likely to redress "collateral consequences adequate to meet Article III's injury-in-fact requirement," Spencer v. Kemna, 523 U. S. 1, 14. One potential collateral consequence that might be remedied by a judgment in respondent's favor is the requirement that he remain registered as a sex offender under Montana law. To determine whether a favorable decision in this case would likely enable respondent to remove his name from Montana's registry, the following question is certified to the Montana Supreme Court: Is respondent's duty to remain registered as a sex offender under Montana law contingent on the validity of the conditions of his now-expired federal juvenile-supervision order, or is it an independent requirement of Montana law that is unaffected by the validity or invalidity of those conditions?

Question certified. Reported below: 590 F. 3d 924.

PER CURIAM.

In 2005, respondent was charged in the United States District Court for the District of Montana with juvenile delinquency under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act (FJDA), 18 U.S.C. § 5031 et seq. Respondent eventually pleaded “true” to knowingly engaging in sexual acts with a person under 12 years of age, which would have been a crime under §§ 2241(c) and 1153(a) if committed by an adult. In June 2005, the District Court accepted respondent’s plea and adjudged him delinquent. The court sentenced respondent to two years’ official detention and juvenile delinquent supervision until his 21st birthday. The court also ordered respondent to spend the first six months of his juvenile supervision in a prerelease center and to abide by the center’s conditions of residency.

In 2006, Congress enacted the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA), 120 Stat. 590, 42 U.S.C. § 16901 et seq. With respect to juvenile offenders, SORNA requires individuals who have been adjudicated delinquent for certain serious sex offenses to register and to keep their registrations current in each jurisdiction where they live, work, and go to school. §§ 16911(8); 16913. In February 2007, the Attorney General issued an interim rule specifying that SORNA’s requirements “apply to all sex offenders, including sex offenders convicted of the offense for which registration is required prior to the enactment of [SORNA].” 72 Fed. Reg. 8897 (codified at 28 CFR § 72.3 (2009)).

In July 2007, the District Court revoked respondent’s juvenile supervision, finding that respondent had failed to comply with the requirements of the prerelease program. The court sentenced respondent to an additional 6-month term of official detention, to be followed by a period of supervision until his 21st birthday. The Government, invoking SORNA’s juvenile registration provisions, argued that respondent should be required to register as a sex offender, at least for the duration of his juvenile supervision. As “special conditions” of his supervision, the court ordered respondent to register as a sex offender and to keep his registration current. App. to Pet. for Cert. 39a.

The Ninth Circuit vacated the sex-offender-registration requirements of the District Court’s order. 590 F. 3d 924 (2010). The Court of Appeals determined that “retroactive application of SORNA’s provision covering individuals who were adjudicated juvenile delinquents because of the commission of certain sex offenses before SORNA’s passage violates the Ex Post Facto Clause of the United States Constitution.” Id., at 927. The court thus held that “SORNA’s juvenile registration provision may not be applied retroactively to individuals adjudicated delinquent under the [FJDA].” Id., at 928.

The United States asks us to grant certiorari to review the Ninth Circuit’s determination that SORNA violates the Ex Post Facto Clause as applied to individuals who were adjudicated juvenile delinquents under the FJDA prior to SORNA’s enactment. Before we can address that question, however, we must resolve a threshold issue of mootness. Before the Ninth Circuit, respondent challenged only the conditions of his juvenile supervision requiring him to register as a sex offender. But on May 2, 2008, respondent’s term of supervision expired, and thus he no longer is subject to those sex-offender-registration conditions. As such, this case likely is moot unless respondent can show that a decision invalidating the sex-offender-registration conditions of his juvenile supervision would be sufficiently likely to redress “collateral consequences adequate to meet Article III’s injury-in-fact requirement.” Spencer v. Kemna, 523 U. S. 1, 14 (1998).

Perhaps the most likely potential “collateral consequence” that might be remedied by a judgment in respondent’s favor is the requirement that respondent remain registered as a sex offender under Montana law. (“By the time of the court of appeals’ decision, respondent had become registered as a sex offender in Montana, where he continues to be registered today.” Pet. for Cert. 29.) We thus must know whether a favorable decision in this case would make it sufficiently likely that respondent “could remove his name and identifying information from the Montana sex offender registry.” Ibid. Therefore, we certify the following question to the Supreme Court of Montana, pursuant to Montana Rule of Appellate Procedure 15 (2009):

Is respondent’s duty to remain registered as a sex offender under Montana law contingent upon the validity of the conditions of his now-expired federal juvenile-supervision order that required him to register as a sex offender, see Mont. Code Ann. §§ 46–23–502(6)(b), 41–5–1513(1)(c) (2005); State v. Villanueva, 328 Mont. 135, 138–140, 118 P. 3d 179, 181–182 (2005); see also § 46–23–502(9)(b) (2009), or is the duty an independent requirement of Montana law that is unaffected by the validity or invalidity of the federal juvenile-supervision conditions, see § 46–23–502(10) (2009); 2007 Mont. Laws ch. 483, § 31, p. 2185?

We respectfully request that the Montana Supreme Court accept our certified question. The court’s answer to this question will help determine whether this case presents a live case or controversy, and there is no controlling appellate decision, constitutional provision, or statute on point. Mont. Rule App. Proc. 15(3). We understand that the Montana Supreme Court may wish to reformulate the certified question. Rule 15(6)(a)(iii).

The Clerk of this Court is directed to transmit to the Supreme Court of Montana a copy of this opinion, the briefs filed in this Court in this case, and a list of the counsel appearing in this matter along with their names and addresses.
